

Training to Senior Forest Officers of Maharashtra Forest Department on Recent Trends in Wood Science and Technology Conducted By Institute of Wood Science and Technology, Bangalore during Dec. 4-6, 2012

The Institute of Wood Science and Technology, Bangalore conducted a training programme for Senior Forest Officers of Maharashtra Forest Department on "Recent Trends in Wood Science and Technology" at IWST Bangalore from December 4-6, 2012. Sh. S.C. Joshi, Director, Institute of Wood Science & Technology, Bangalore, inaugurated the program and addressed the trainees with his lecture. The other lectures were on basics and advances in wood drying, Recent technological breakthrough in wood science, basic concepts and methods of wood preservation, wood modification: scope and opportunities, wood polymer composites, advanced nursery practices of sandalwood - A highly priced tree species with commercial potential. A field visit to model sandalwood plantation at Bevanahalli was also arranged beside one day visit to FRLHT Bangalore.

